HADLEY

The People Puppy

Social | Outgoing | Affectionate | Confident | Engaging

PERSONALITY

Hadley clearly enjoys people. She readily approached and interacted with the tester, followed appropriately, and showed a confident social personality. Her responses to unfamiliar sights and objects were moderate and curious rather than fearful.

FAMILY / PEOPLE-FOCUSED / THERAPY PROSPECT

STRENGTHS

Strong human interest; outgoing social style; affectionate engagement; reasonable handling acceptance; good visual curiosity; confidence without extreme intensity.

GROWTH AREAS

Early work on polite greetings and impulse control will help channel her social enthusiasm. Because retrieving was not highly motivating on test day, finding her preferred training rewards will be useful.

BEST-FIT HOME

Well suited to a family that wants an affectionate, involved companion. She should fit active or moderately active homes and may be interesting for therapy work as her adult temperament develops.

ABOUT THIS EVALUATION

Volhard testing is a snapshot of natural responses at seven weeks, not a guarantee of adult temperament. Genetics, socialization, training, environment, and life experience all influence development.
